CAPT. AND MRS. HARLOW'S SUPPER SOCIETY FEATURE

Take thirty-five guests, surrounded over with pretty and good for a long time, with them in their places in a room that was the best that could be had in the way of food and drink, the whole to be served in the most attractive surroundings imaginable, and you have the supper for such a large number as was given by Captain and Mrs. Harlow on the last night of the California Thursday night.

To see what the affair was a success, to see the guests on the ship at the time, to see that it was not only a success but a success in the eyes of the guests, for the party was a success in every way and from every angle. Never has Honolulu seen the like in the way of a shipboard entertainment, or, for that matter, has the like been given before in the history of the city and its people.

Parties usually begin with an introduction, so take a look at the program, a reproduction of the list given out by Captain and Mrs. Harlow, which appears in the adjoining column, and to which the key is attached.

After the introduction, the guests, in the natural sequence of events, and some of these were as good as the clever picture puzzle which appeared.

After the answers came the guests, themselves all personally on time with both their appetites and their curiosity, the whole for the moment. The quarterdeck of the California had been screened off with flags and bunting, and elaborately lighted with incandescent side brackets, which, coupled with comfortable furniture and rich Turkish rugs, transformed the quarterdeck into a more than comfortable drawing room. Bridge was the order of the early evening but towards 11 o'clock cards were put away with regret to make room for the real thing.

The supper started with a procession, Captain Harlow is great on processions, as those who were present at his Christmas night dance have reason to remember. But before the procession got in an appearance, the guests were partially prepared for the surprise to follow by being given a chef's cap apiece and an ample amount on which was stenciled the various names of the host and hostess, which appear at the top of the invitation. Likewise the first name and pet name of each guest, and a large serial number.

Then came the procession. It was headed by the Captain's cook, bearing a huge Kahili. Came after, twelve musicians, who had given free play to their imaginations in the construction of both instruments and costumes. To use the vernacular, they were a scream, and their music was something just between a scream and the music of a mad and soul, forever lost and gone. Then four bearers, carrying a valiant under which slouched a sandwich man, of the genuine home-baked variety, of fare on his board. Next three Hobes, garbed in the most elaborate of costumes that entered into a night of the moment. They caught sight of each other. The Hobes, dressed gracefully on their shoulders, magnificent of champagne and did their best not to trip on their long flaxen tresses, manufactured from many feet of good Manila. Then a transparency with the following legends emblazoned on its four sides for all to read: "White Rock, the Official House," "We Recommend Our Beer," "We Have Champagne But It Gives You Heart," "You're Kin Have Anything You Want, See."

Then came three long mess tables, each one preceded by its own cooking apparatus, a blazing brazier of charcoal in an incandescent container. Rough benches went with the tables, the latter set with the discarded mess gear of the enlisted men, and bearing the regulation tin cups, each cup decorated with a number. The guest who had arrived No. 22 sat down opposite cup No. 22, and was fixed for the evening. Table decorations were the most impressively baneful of impossible colored actors, screwed up together and stuffed into tomato cans. The tables were lighted by candle stock in bottle necks.

Each guest was provided with a pink meal ticket, for "The Kalifornia Cafe" with little crosses opposite the following legends: "Beefsteak Only," "The White Fish," "Beer—Champagne—White Rock, All Three."

Mrs. Harlow went round with a small pouch, and when a guest expressed his choice the pouch picked up the item, and that was what he got.

The grilling of the steak was done right before the hungry-eyed guests. The steaks were poons and the salad a veritable appeal to ones better nature. Everybody sang during the moments that they could spare from the enjoyment of the viands. Captain Harlow presided at one table, Captain Terhune at another and Captain Marix at the third.

The following were Captain and Mrs. Harlow's guests:

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Tenney, Gen. and Mrs. Murch, Major and Mrs. Wooten, Capt. and Mrs. Gill, Capt. Holsted, Admiral and Mrs. Thomas, Admiral Southernland, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dillingham, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Woodhouse, Dr. Cooper, Capt. and Mrs. Marix, Capt. and Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Coleman, Paymaster and Mrs. Irwin, Major and Mrs. Neville, Mr. and Mrs. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dillingham, Dr. Norton, Mrs. Hyde-Smith, Capt. Terhune, Lieut. Keiran, Mrs. Swanzy.

Mrs. Francis Mills Swanzy's Dinner. Wednesday evening, Mrs. Francis Mills Swanzy entertained informally at dinner at her home on College street. Covers were arranged for eight, trailing nasturtium vines formed an attractive decoration. After dinner, bridge was enjoyed. Among those present were Mrs. Francis Mills Swanzy, Mr. and Mrs. Ranny Scott, Miss Nora Swanzy, Mr. Richard Wright and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wall's Dinner. Handsome in its appointments was the dinner given Wednesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wall, to a number of their friends who were passengers on the Cleveland. The tropical decorations of scarlet bougainvillea and poinsettias were a source of admiration. A regular Hawaiian dinner was served, to see them in use, after the dinner hour. Lieut. and Mrs. James Pine, Miss Alice Cooper, Miss Case, Miss Irma Ballentyne, Miss Irene Cooper, Ensign Logan and Ensign Thomas of the U. S. S. West Virginia and Ensign Baughman of the U. S. S. Colorado formed a tennis party on Thursday evening of this week.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wall, Mrs. A. H. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Henthill of Roseville, California, M. C. W. Buck of San Francisco, Miss Daisy Dietz and others.

Mrs. Robert Bond's Reception.

One of the notable social events of the week was the reception given Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Robert Bond at her home in Manoa Valley. Miss Hughes of Berkeley, who is spending the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bond, was the motif for the entertainment. Yellow and green were the colors chosen for the decorative scheme. The hostess and her guest of honor received in the artistic drawing room, where, between the hours of 4 and 6, the invited guests paid their respects. During the reception Kaul's orchestra, concealed behind tropical palms on the lanai, played sweet and melodious native airs. In the dining room delicious refreshments were served. Miss Edith Ross poured tea, and Mrs. Ernest Ross dispensed the coffee. A corps of well-trained Orientals passed ices, cakes and bon bons. Mrs. Arthur Mackintosh, Miss Bertha Kopke and Miss Ethel Gay assisted in the entertainment of the guests. The reception was quite a large affair, for the young hostess included her entire calling list. Among those who participated in this enjoyable affair were Mrs. W. D. Adams, Mrs. Robbin B. Anderson, Mrs. Frank C. Atherton, Miss Helen Alexander, Mrs. William D. Baldwin, Mrs. Kenneth B. Barnes, Miss Ethel Bishop, Miss C. J. Blair, Mrs. W. S. Brown, Mrs. Alfred L. Castle, Mrs. A. N. Whitney, Mrs. Charles T. Wilder, Mrs. Gardner Wilder, Mrs. William Williamson.

Mrs. Hopper's Poi Supper. Last evening, Miss Margaret Hopper entertained at a poi supper at her home on Kalamoku street. With the exception of her house guest, Mrs. Washburn, the twenty-two guests were all relatives or family connections. The supper was served in the true Hawaiian style; the table was garlanded with ferns and red carnations. Leds of malle and scarlet carnations were worn during the evening. The entertainment proved to be an enjoyable affair.

Mrs. and Mrs. John McCandless' Luncheon.

A profusion of American Beauty roses ornamented the luncheon table when Mr. and Mrs. John McCandless entertained Monday in honor of their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Barnes, of Ellensburg, Washington, and Mrs. Washburn, who is visiting Miss Margaret Hopper. Covers were arranged for fourteen. Among those present, beside the host and hostess, were Mr. and Mrs. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Jewett Lowrey, Mrs. Washburn, Miss Margaret Hopper, Mr. and Mrs. Wells Peterson and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Marlin Hepburn.

Mrs. A. Hocking gave a children's party Thursday afternoon, in honor of her youngest daughter, Sibyl. There were about twenty-four children present. The afternoon was devoted to juvenile games. At five o'clock, delicious refreshments were served at small tables decorated with Dutchess roses. The dainty favors were all in pink and green.

Lieut. and Mrs. Pine's Chafing Dish Supper.

A number of young people played several closely contested tennis games on the Manoa courts, Thursday evening. Evening tennis is becoming quite a fad amongst the residents of Manoa Valley. There are large arch lights on the court, so it is not unusual. After the exciting games, the party adjourned to Lieut. and Mrs. Pine's home, where a delicious chafing dish supper was served. The table was prettily decorated with Shasta daisies and smilax.

Mrs. Eben Low's Poi Luncheon.

Mrs. Eben Low entertained Thursday afternoon at a poi luncheon, in honor of Mrs. Charles L. Wight, who, with her husband, is completing a trip around the world on the "Cleveland." Mrs. Wight is a kahunanua, and many of her old friends were bidden to this Hawaiian feast. The luncheon was served at one o'clock, "midst an environment of tropical palms and ferns. The long table was arranged on the maki lanai, which was draped with silk Hawaiian flags and royal ensigns that had formerly been used at the Palace, during the monarchy. The royal color of yellow was used exclusively in the ornamentation of the table, with the exception of a mass of mountain ferns that covered the entire surface of the table. Hima leis, twined with malle, were draped on the back of each chair; the fragrant floral wreaths were donned by the guests as they sat down and worn during the repast. One of the distinctive decorations, were the priceless calabashes that were used as receptacles for poi. These koa bowls were found at the place of each guest. In the center of the table was a mammoth calabash, filled with the island fruits. This particular calabash had formerly belonged to one of the Kahunanua. All the delicacies of the season were served at this enjoyable feast. Among the old friends who were present to welcome the guest of honor were Mrs. Sanford Ballard Dole, Mrs. Andrew Fuller, Mrs. J. R. Galt, Mrs. Edward Tenney, Mrs. Arthur Wilder, Miss Helen Achilles.

Mrs. Gardner Wilder's Dinner.

Twelve covers were arranged for the artistic dinner that was given Thursday evening, by Mrs. Gardner Wilder. The dinner was given at the Hotel Courtland, where Mrs. Wilder is making her home. The large circular table was ornamented with well-kept chrysanthemums, gracefully arranged in a gold bowl. Streamers of tulle, in the same shade as the flowers, were festooned from the chandeliers, with traceries of smilax. The arrangement of the table on the surface of the table was greatly admired. Here and there amongst the soft folds were arranged sprigs of chrysanthemums. The dinner favors were bougainvillea and corsage bouquets of chrysanthemums. After dinner a number of rubbers of bridge were enjoyed. Among those present were Mrs. Gardner Wilder, Admiral and Mrs. Walter Cowles, the Honorable and Mrs. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sheedy, Mrs. Alexander Campbell, Mr. James McInerney and Mrs. Curzon Osborne.

Mrs. E. A. Jones, Mrs. Francis Mills Swanzy, Mrs. Ranny Scott, Mrs. Walter Gifford, Miss Hook of Boston, Mrs. George Potter, Mrs. Helen Noonan, Mrs. Sam Wilder, Mrs. E. Faxon Bishop, the Misses Ward, Miss Carlo Green, Mrs. Ernest Ross, Mrs. Gerrit Wilder, Mrs. Paul Jarrett, Mrs. C. Widemann, and others.

United Service Bridge Club.

Mrs. Wooten entertained the United Service Bridge Club at her home at Fort De Russy Monday afternoon. The meeting proved unusually enjoyable, for Mrs. Wooten possesses the happy faculty of making all of her friends enjoy themselves when they meet under her hospitable roof. The prizes, consisting of embroidered center pieces designed in Canton grass cloth, were very pretty. Mesdames Willis, Johnston, Roy Francis Smith and Brown were the highest "bridgers" and consequently were awarded the prizes. Later in the afternoon a buffet tea was served. Among those present were Mrs. Wooten, Mrs. Neville, Mrs. Timberlake, Mrs. Arthur Marix, Mrs. Turner, Mrs. John Irwin, Mrs. Putnam, Mrs. Walter Cowles, Mrs. Roy Francis Smith, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Johnson, Miss Katherine Stephens, Mrs. Tuttle, Mrs. Case, Mrs. Ross Kingsbury, Mrs. Willis, Mrs. Gaylor, Miss Case, Mrs. Preston and others.

Mrs. Williams' Dancing Party.

Mrs. Claire Williams will entertain on Wednesday of next week at a dancing party that is to be given in honor of her daughter, Miss Edith Williams. This is the second of a series that has been given by Miss Williams. The last party, which proved such a success, having been planned with great precision of detail, was given in commemoration of Miss Williams' birthday. The social event scheduled for February the twenty-ninth is being anticipated by the forty friends that have been invited.

O. E. S. Installation.

On Saturday evening, Jan. 20th, about one hundred persons met in the Masonic Temple to witness the installation of officers of Harmony Chapter, No. 4, O. E. S. The following being installed:

The decorations were unique, colored lanterns and lights being used in the banquet hall and ante-room. Baskets of flowers were received by Miss Klein, Mrs. Welbourn, Mrs. Wolf, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Fairweather. Dr. Fairweather and Mr. Frazee receiving malle leis tied with the color of the order.

Captain Terhune's Dinner.

Commander Warren J. Terhune, chief of staff of the Pacific fleet, was the host last night at a delightful dinner given on the flagship California. Twenty-four sat down to two beautifully appointed round tables, set on the spacious quarterdeck, which for the evening was converted into two good sized rooms by the use of flags, tapestries, rugs and luxurious lounging places. Excellent music and an excellent dinner completed the success of the entertainment.

Captain Terhune's guests were: Rear Admiral and Mrs. Thomas, Rear Admiral Southernland, General and Mrs. Macomb, Captain and Mrs. Harlow, Captain and Mrs. G. E. U. Comdr, and Mrs. Wade, Captain Halsey, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Dillingham, Mr. and Mrs. Ivers, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Wilder, Mrs. G. P. Wilder, Miss Marian Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Woodhouse, Mrs. Swanzy.

Mrs. Arthur Hodgins was operated on Friday at the Queen's Hospital for appendicitis. From the last report the patient is doing nicely.
